GranuLab is a sound creation utility for Windows. Created as a free open source project, its scope is to produce a variety of sound effects and loops in digital audio. GranuLab is a simplistic and free sound-making tool that emulates the grainy sound of old tape recorders. A feature of GranuLab is that it supports easy mode, normal mode and hard mode, where the effects are produced by adding grain in different intensities. Another key feature is the ability to record audio while running in hard mode. You can use this feature to record, or create custom sound effects. Features:

===== Grain Random grains of the "Hi-Low" type.

BPM (Beats Per Minute) Create beats with the desired bpm. BPM settings (Iso, Half-Time, Quarter-Time). Transformation of BPM and the pitch Show the difference between a quarter-time and half-time. Show the pitch in semitones. Pitch settings (Semitone, Full-Semitone, Pentatonic, Minor Sharp). Integration with other instruments of same key. Grain settings.
