Regional broadcast schedules include Regional Kickoff Saturday on Sept. 7 and the home opener on Sept. 14, as well as the NIT Championship Game, which will be broadcast on ESPN. Fans can follow regional game updates on Twitter (@ESPN) and the ESPN app. As the team prepares for the start of the season, ESPN will provide nightly updates from practice, interviews with team coaches and players and live streaming of all games. Fans can watch ESPN's nightly reports, as well as the games, via WatchESPN.Q: Set data types in a function I would like to know how to set a data type to a single variable (int for example) in python. For example, if I had a function that had a for loop and I wanted to set a variable to an integer, how would I do this? Something like a = 0 for i in range(4) a = i+3 print(a) A: You need to use the setter method of the object that is to be assigned to a. This method takes an argument that specifies what the value will be. In this case: a = set(range(4)) # or range(4) if you don't want to create a list a.update(3) What this does is set a to a list of values starting at 0 and incrementing by 1. Then a.update(3) sets that list to include 3. Note that set(range(4)) is equivalent to range(4).set([0]). That is, it is the same thing as range(4).
